3.v. O, how sweet, at day's de - clin - ing,
 1.v. See the sha - dows now are stea - ling
 2.v. O'er the vale the mists are creep - ing:

'Tis to rest from earth-born care; Gaz - ing on those Slow - ly down the moun - tain breast; Hark! the tur - ret Chant - ing hive - ward goes the bee; One by one the far worlds shin - ing, Dream - ing that our home is there.

 bells are peal - ing Chee - ri - ly the hour of rest.
 stars are peep - ing Through the wel - kin tran - quil - ly.

Though the shad - owy gates of e - ven Shut out earth, they Now the mel - low day - light clo - ses; All the world from Murmur - ing like a child a - dream - ing, Star - light on its op - en heav - en, Where the soul would fain a - - bide toil re - pos - es; Eve - - ry breeze has sunk and died, rip - - ples gleam - ing, Through the mead the brook doth glide,

In the ho - - ly e - - ven - - tide.
'Tis the peace - ful e - - ven - - tide.
In the sol - - emn e - - ven - - tide.
